

The Case for Self-Love

December 8th, 2020

Gia Levé releases her second original song that speaks to all women, and likely men, as well.

“Never Lonely” is a song of self-acceptance a celebration swelling from feeling less-than to expanding into a full expression of who we can be.

“It was a shock to me to discover that 100% of the women who sat in a closing women’s circle of a 6 week workshop suffered from low self-esteem and negative self-talk.

I extrapolated and considered to overlay that percentage on at least the female population (and that it wasn’t exclusively a gender issue) that we all need some healing. I felt moved to give this topic my musical voice.

“Never Lonely” is my personalized voice to the ache of many. The chorus exclaims “Now I got love!” and “L’amour de soi” (self-love) words that resonate and feel great when sung. I intended the words to feel positive, a repatterning occurring each time it’s sung.

Co-written with the Brothers Koren, a duo who has shared the stage with Pink, Rod Stewart and Coldplay and 4-time Grammy award winning producer, Bruce Lowe, who punched up the production values with hard-to-resist rhythmic movement. A long-time advocate of the healing value of music evidenced through his foundation, Music Has Healing Power, Bruce applies scientifically corroborated research in the construct of his musical productions.

“It was the perfect alchemy to work with such wonderful collaborators in producing a song with soul, positive messaging, movement and some science!”

My sincere wish is to bring music to the world that is authentic, touches peoples hearts in a positive way and maybe even sparks a recognition and opportunity to change.

“Never Lonely” was selected and aired pre-release on 10/25/20 as part of Music with a Conscience series, for #1 Award Winning Podcast ,“Women of Substance” followed by 10,000 monthly listeners and promoted to 60,000 social media followers.
